

Electronic Transactions

When you log into ConnectCarolina, you are agreeing to conduct business with the University electronically during your academic career. Email and the ConnectCarolina portal are the primary tools the University uses to share important information with students. This includes, but is not limited to, financial aid, student financial information, and class registration. Some of these electronic transactions and agreements may involve financial obligations.

When you agree to conduct business electronically with the University, you acknowledge that you have read and consent to the following:

- You will conduct business electronically with the University using your UNC-Chapel Hill official email account.
- You will only access ConnectCarolina as yourself, using your personal ONYEN and password. Use of university accounts by anyone other than the account holder is strictly prohibited.
- Unless you specifically withdraw your consent, by creating your personal ONYEN and password you are agreeing to conduct business electronically and to the above statements.

If you do not agree to communicate with UNC-Chapel Hill electronically and to the items above, you are choosing to opt out of electronic communication and transactions, and you will not have access to ConnectCarolina. To obtain more information about the potential impact of conducting business with individual campus offices offline, contact the University Registrar. Note that manual, non-electronic alternatives will result in longer processing times and not all services are available through non-electronic means.
