This class is cross-listed with NUTR 715 / ANTH 175
This course introduces students to a wide range of topics covering food studies taught by faculty across the UNC campus as well as from Duke, NC State and outside of an academic setting. The overall objective of this course is to provide an overview of how individuals, communities, and societies produce, distribute, and eat food. This inter-disciplinary course will examine cultural, political, economic, environmental, and geographic approaches to food within local, national, and global contexts. Topics include food politics, food in the arts, land use, how we eat through time, culture and religious food values as well as a basic understanding of physiological concepts of nutrition. Students will explore:

You can sign up under any department's course number. It will still count towards your major/minor in those departments.

NOTE: During the 2020-2021 academic year, AMST248 will also fulfill the "Introduction" requirement for the major and minor in American Studies (typically According to the US Census Bureau, in the year 2020 more than half of the nation's children are expected to be part of a minority race or ethnic group. All Americans under the age of 18 are now at the front of a trend that will see the overall population follow suit some 20 years later (NPR's Hansi Lo Wang). In essence, we are in a time of a dynamic racial shift, and yet our country seems to be divided or confused about what race is, how to talk about it, and how it might intersect with other identity formations such as gender, class, or sexuality. The first goal of this super-course is to give students real tools for how to address multiple modes of difference and to understand how intersectionality—the theory of interlocking identities that reflect multiple

Food and Race in America

This critical food studies course engages the crucial intersection between food and race in America. That such an intersection must be explored in order to achieve food equity is the starting place for this class. Through readings and discussions, students will uncover, historicize, and address the structural inequalities in the world of food production, consumption, and accumulation in America today. In the process, we will consider food as a material that both perpetuates and mediates social inequalities. We will take an ethnographic approach to understanding issues in the world of food that up to this point have been largely rendered invisible—for example, the relations of power and the class distinctions underscoring representations of cooking and eating in food magazines, newspapers, television shows, and circulated on social media platforms, and also on displayed in restaurants, farmers’ markets, and fast food joints around the nation. Throughout the course students will chronicle, in writing assignments both in and out of class, local and national experiences of the intersections between food and race.

This course is cross-listed with ASIA 691H
AMST 691H is a research and methods course designed to help senior American Studies and Asian Studies majors research and write an honors thesis. Our objectives are to review some major issues in Asian and American Studies and interdisciplinary area studies in general, investigate how each student’s research topic fits into these larger debates, review the writing conventions of the appropriate discipline and field, and help students produce innovative, insightful, and articulate research essays. Students who complete and successfully defend an honors thesis will graduate with honors. American Studies and Asian Studies students will also participate in the senior colloquium in the spring, where each student will give a short presentation summarizing their thesis research. Completed theses will be entered into the Carolina Digital Repository.

Students writing an honors thesis will be enrolled in AMST 691H and ASIA 691H by the department once their thesis applications have been approved.

AMERICAN STUDIES

Course Title: CRITICAL ETHNIC STUDIES (CES) Lecture 3

Bldg: Greenlaw
Room: 0302
Days: M
Time: 15:35 - 18:35

Instructor: HOLLAND, SHARON PATRICIA

Class Enrl Cap: 15
Class Enrl Tot: 4
Class Wait Cap: 3
Class Wait Tot: 0
Class Min Enrl: 0

Topics:
This course is devised to provide graduate students interested in theoretical interdisciplinary work with a sense of prevailing questions and critiques important to CES. CES takes on the more difficult questions of intersectional work, as it thinks through sovereignty and emancipation, identity and ontology, place, space and temporality. Each iteration of the course works itself through new perspectives in the field, challenging students to create new methodologies for their own work.

Prerequisite is Cherokee 102 or permission of instructor. This course reviews and deepens grammatical knowledge from Cherokee 101 and 102. We will increase extemporaneous speaking and produce new written texts in the Cherokee syllabary. Students will discuss the world around them in addition to the self and others.

This critical food studies course engages the crucial intersection between food and race in America. That such an intersection must be explored in order to achieve food equity is the starting place for this class. Through readings and discussions, students will uncover, historicize, and address the structural inequalities in the world of food production, consumption, and accumulation in America today. In the process, we will consider food as a material that both perpetuates and mediates social inequalities. We will take an ethnographic approach to understanding issues in the world of food that up to this point have been largely rendered invisible; for example, the relations of power and the class distinctions underscoring representations of cooking and eating in food magazines, newspapers, television shows, and circulated on social media platforms, and also on displayed in restaurants, farmers’ markets, and fast food joints around the nation. Throughout the course students will chronicle, in writing assignments both in and out of class, local and national experiences of the intersections between food and race.

Description:
Darwin's theory of evolution by natural selection is central to one of the most profound revolutions in the history of thought, generating stunning insights but also some misunderstanding and tragic abuse. This seminar aims to provide a clear understanding of how natural selection works, and how it doesn't. We will examine objections to the theory; how the environmental and health problems we face today reflect processes of natural selection; and recent attempts to understand why we get sick, how we respond to disease, why we get old, why we choose mates the way we do, and more. Class sessions will feature a mix of lecture and discussion of concepts and issues. Students will also engage in small group projects: cooperative explorations of problems raised in class or in the readings and/or designing mini research projects.

Registration Procedures:

FIRST YEAR STUDENTS ONLY.

Description:
With the United States as our geographic focus, this seminar explores a range of 20th- and early-21st-century American Indian topics and current issues. We look at Indian casinos, tribal colleges, identity, gender, tribal courts, sports, and other topics. An exploration of the history of American Indians before and after the arrival of Europeans, a history with which we begin the seminar, provides essential background for looking at the present and recent past. This seminar will help students better understand the challenges facing American Indian communities both internally and externally and the creative solutions being forged to address these challenges. It will also help students further develop skills in reading, writing, critical analysis, and public speaking.

Registration Procedures:
In mid-June, FY students entering their second term in residence in fall 2021 will be able to enroll in FYS when their registration session opens. This

Starting in fall 2021, we are dropping the pre-requisites to this class. While it is helpful to have prior programming experience, this is not required.

Engineers help to design and build solutions to the world's problems. This course will explore some of the fundamental skills and tools in engineering. You will get experience using engineering tools, and you will also develop a mindset so that you can "learn how to learn" because technology changes rapidly and the tools that you use today may be obsolete in 20 years. There will be an emphasis on developing strong professional skills, including work in a group setting and effectively communicating your efforts.

In addition, a goal of this class is to help you develop an entrepreneurial mindset so that you will understand the bigger picture. For example, while it may be easy to develop an engineering solution to a problem, what are the economic and ethical considerations of various solutions? These concepts are important to help engineers build a better world.

What kind of material is Sponge Bob made of? What about the slime of his pet snail, Gary? We are taught that there are three states of matter: solid, gas, and liquid. However, in our daily lives we encounter materials that challenge this simple description such as foams, pastes, gels, soap, and rubber, as well as our skin, hair, nails, and cells. These are Soft Materials and in this course we will learn about their special properties and how to describe them mathematically. This class is an active one, everyone participates and everyone learns from and helps one another. We will use various in-class activities to make the class more engaging. We will discuss, take quizzes, and do presentations. We will also evaluate each other's homework. Be prepared to come to class and participate in these activities! The technical material that you will learn will provide you with a valuable skillset. In addition, a goal of this class is to help you develop an entrepreneurial mindset so that you will understand the bigger picture; draw connections between the material in this class and what you have learned in other classes; recognize opportunities; and learn from mistakes to create value for yourself and others.

Note: You can enroll in this course when you have the instructor's consent to enroll.

DESCRIPTION:

Focusing on the Carolinas, this seminar explores the many ways African Americans have used art to define themselves and their communities. We will ask how art has been used to maintain cultural traditions, shape American culture and build political solidarity from the era of colonialism and slavery to the present. We will study the cultivation of artistic practices from Africa; African American painters, sculptors and craftsmen who earned national reputations for the quality of their work; artists who re-imagined and redefined African American identity through art; and artists throughout the 20th century who represented the daily lives and hardships of rural and working-class blacks. Students will visit campus museums and archives and conduct original research using regional sources. Persistent questions throughout the semester will include, How does the art of African Americans in the Carolinas provoke us to question our own identities and roles within the region, and what is the contemporary role of art in shaping public discourse?

Title: Seen, Unseen and Suggested: Representation and Hollywood Film Censorship

This course will look at the history of film censorship in the United States from the perspective of how such things as the Production Code (Hays Code), wartime restrictions, Anti-communist blacklisting, regional and local censorship boards, late 1960s movements for social change, and culturally and socially-determined moral and ethical standards restricted what could and could not be seen on movie screens in American theaters. We will watch and then analyze approximately 30 films from a cross-section of the 120-year history of cinema in the US, paying special attention to issues of gender, sexuality, race, class, and political persuasion as they affect on-screen representation. The goal of the course will be to cover the myriad ways in which censorship determined/determines what audiences saw/see on film and how that created a seemingly culturally-unified image of "America" that was/is, for many Americans, restrictive and exclusionary of their life experiences, if not outright hostile to their participation in American cultural life.

ARTH 490: Inventing the Modern Artist
Toiling in solitude, their attention entirely transfixed, living in destitution; a bohemian, a vagabond, erudite yet tempestuous. A genius. The image of the modern artist is itself a construction, and a relatively recent one at that. Solidifying across the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, it was the product of centuries of debate and careful maneuvering in order to elevate the visual artist to the same level of public respect and regard as the poet and the philosopher. With an emphasis on European and North American visual artists and art worlds, this class will examine the invention of the modern artist from the Middle Ages to today. We will progress chronologically, exploring and revisiting key topics such as the evolving distinction between art and craft; the socioeconomic status of the artist and the emergence of the starving artist trope; representations of visual artists in imagery, theater, and writing; artists from marginalized and under-represented groups; different historical models for conceptualizing “genius”; and the relationship between the artist, labor, and the art market. By examining the history of the modern artist’s invention, we can position ourselves to invent new visions for what it means to

Title:  ARTH 557: Art and Money
This course explores the intersection of art and economics from the seventeenth century to the present. We will explore both the aesthetics of the monetary and monetary in art. What does the design of cash have to do with its value? What is an NFT and how does it change the art market? Why did economists from Marx to Keynes turn to aesthetics to understand finance? We will also study artists whose work is about or made of money, from William Harnett to Andy Warhol, and the economics of art production, from the famous trial of James McNeill Whistler to the politics of the readymade. Sessions will address themes of both artistic and economic concern such as value, labor, market, counterfeiting, consumption, reproduction, and circulation.

ARTH 952: Seminar in Museum Studies
Dr. Daniel Sherman

This research seminar introduces students to the theoretical and methodological framework of critical museum studies and asks them to engage with it in their own research. Our readings will focus on three areas: influential texts from the late twentieth century that helped establish a critical approach to the history of museums; recent efforts by museums to recount their own histories, such as “Making the Met,” a 2020 show marking the 150th anniversary of the Metropolitan Museum; and scholarship integrating art history, anthropology, and post-colonial studies around the problem of restitution of artifacts from Western museums to source countries. Students will write a substantial research paper on a museum, exhibition, or collection, historical or contemporary, of interest to them.

ARTH 971: Seminar in Renaissance Art

This course focuses on artistic engagements with the environment from the eighteenth century to the present, primarily in North America. While we will study a range of artists, practices, and movements from furniture making to Land Art, our main objective is methodological. Together we will define ecocritical art history and try to understand, expand, and challenge its parameters and goals. Along with art historical scholarship, we will read texts in environmental history, history of science, and new materialism. The course is organized thematically by ecosystem, with topics such as forest, ocean, ice,
Students will write a seminar paper based on independent research. Paper topics must relate to the themes of the course but can expand beyond the time period and geographic regions covered.

DESCRIPTION:
Alice Walker wrote "Time moves slowly, but passes quickly." Tennessee Williams wrote, "Time is the longest distance between two places." Throughout history, time has captivated and inspired artists, writers, and musicians. From subtle movements to clearly defined sequences of change, artists will manipulate the element of time to enhance their ideas. "Time, A Doorway to Visual Expression," considers the concept of time from a variety of perspectives and provides a path to investigate your own notions of time. As a group, we examine this mystifying topic through readings and discussions of Alan Lightman's "Einstein's Dreams" and Leonard Shlain's "Art and Physics." We also watch films, analyze videos, and listen to music as we express our personal views through the art-making process. As a first-year seminar, the course presumes no previous art experience and students may carry out their projects through a medium of their choosing (e.g., drawing, photography, painting, video, sound, performance, and/or sculpture). We will immerse ourselves in the subject of time and create works of art inspired by our personal experiences and increased understanding of Time.

Print I is a media-based studio art foundation course. It is designed to introduce core concepts of 2-D image-making through concepts and techniques of printmaking. In other words, the course focuses on developing visual literacy with specific attention to image-making strategies afforded by print media such as layering, reversal, multiple (editions, variant and modular) that make this approach to art-making unique. Questions arising from this inquiry include:

- What does working with a matrix or set of matrices allow? What sorts of images and ideas does this make possible?
- Why make art in serial or multiple forms?
- How is thinking for print different than/same as other media?
- How can the tools and methods of printmaking shape the development of an idea, both visually and conceptually?

ARTS 409H.001 | Honors Art & Science: Merging Printmaking and Biology
Instructor(s): Bob Goldstein / Beth Grabowski

ARTS409H and BIOL409L together form a single course that brings together art majors and science majors to learn theory and practical skills in both art and science. The title of the class, Art and Science, implies an intersection of the two disciplines. Intrinsic to both is an investment in close observation, experimentation and visual analysis. While organized around meaningful connections between art and science, the course will actively consider disciplinary differences, especially with regard to what constitutes creative and scientific research.

Most seats in this course are reserved for FR, SO, and DAMES majors. Anyone may waitlist; unused reserved seats will be released and go first to the people on the waitlist, if any.

First-year seats will be added to the course gradually for each wave of FY registration, so even if the course looks full, there should be more FY seats to come if not all FY have registered. The final class size is 35.

This research-based lab introduces students to the process of science through collaboration on a research project, learning relevant techniques and scientific skills.

Topics include identification of soil bacteria and isolation of natural products they produce.

This lab can be taken in place of BIOL 101L and when taken with BIOL 101, counts as Communication Intensive credit. For incoming first year students ONLY!

If you are not able to register on your own (for whatever reason — no prereqs, etc), plan to attend the first lecture in the fall. Add your name to the class signup sheet for students not registered that will be available in class the first day. We enroll as many students as possible that day, giving priority to transfer students and students that are approaching graduation.

BIOL 202H.001 | Molecular Biology and Genetics

MW, 3:00 pm - 4:45 pm. Instructor(s): Steven Matson. Enrollment = 24.

The content of this course will be similar to that of a regular section of BIOL202. We will discuss the structure and function of nucleic acids as well as the principles of inheritance, gene expression, genome organization, biotechnology and genetic engineering. There will be two class meetings per week with special emphasis on class discussion and an interactive classroom. You are expected to be actively engaged in this course through discussions, class activities and pre- as well as post-class assignments and readings. In addition to three mid-term exams and the final exam, there will be one significant writing/media assignment and at least one small group project during the semester. The required text for this course will be Essentials of Genetics (10th edition) by Klug et al. There will be additional assigned reading from various sources. Students who have taken or are currently taking organic chemistry will be particularly well prepared for this course.

Permission required for enrollment.
BIOL 395/395H/495 will only be accepting an online-application form for undergraduate research. You will apply online, get a copy after submission, and share the copy with your research mentor and biology sponsor (when applicable).

Here is the online form:
https://forms.gle/qvdBoW26cbyfcQhGA

Please note—before you apply you need to make sure that you found a lab and a faculty that will mentor you (principal instructor or PI). If that faculty member is outside the biology department you also need to find a biology faculty member that will serve as the biology faculty sponsor, interacting with you and the faculty mentor (the PI) to make sure everything works well during the semester.

BIOL 395/395H/495 will only be accepting an online-application form for undergraduate research. You will apply online, get a copy after submission, and share the copy with your research mentor and biology sponsor (when applicable).

Here is the online form:
https://forms.gle/qvdBoW26cbvfcQhGA

Please note- before you apply you need to make sure that you found a lab and a faculty that will mentor you (principal instructor or PI). If that faculty member is outside the biology department you also need to find a biology faculty member that will serve as the biology faculty sponsor, interacting with you and the faculty mentor (the PI) to make sure everything works well during the semester.

Permission required for enrollment.
BIOL 395/395H/495 will only be accepting an online-application form for undergraduate research. You will apply online, get a copy after submission, and share the copy with your research mentor and biology sponsor (when applicable).

Here is the online form:
https://forms.gle/qvdBoW26cbyfcQhGA

Please note- before you apply you need to make sure that you found a lab and a faculty that will mentor you (principal instructor or PI). If that faculty member is outside the biology department you also need to find a biology faculty member that will serve as the biology faculty sponsor, interacting with you and the faculty mentor (the PI) to make sure everything works well during the semester.

BIOL 395/395H/495 will only be accepting an online-application form for undergraduate research. You will apply online, get a copy after submission, and share the copy with your research mentor and biology sponsor (when applicable).

Here is the online form:
https://forms.gle/qvdBoW26cbyfcQhGA

Please note- before you apply you need to make sure that you found a lab and a faculty that will mentor you (principal instructor or PI). If that faculty member is outside the biology department you also need to find a biology faculty member that will serve as the biology faculty sponsor, interacting with you and the faculty mentor (the PI) to make sure everything works well during the semester.

BIOL 395H - Honors Research in Biology

The purpose of BIOL 395H is to provide honors students with independent research experience, while working in a research lab on a question of current biological interest. Under the supervision of a faculty member, and with contribution of research postdoctoral fellows, students will learn more than just basic research techniques. They will learn how to start to think as scientists, raising hypotheses and finding ways to test them in an empirical manner. In addition to the research performed in the lab, honors students will meet with each other on a weekly basis, discuss their research and develop their scientific thinking through reading and discussing primary scientific literature.

FOR BIOLOGY MAJORS ONLY. PREVIOUS ENROLLMENT IN BIOL 201 OR 202 REQUIRED. DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGY PERMISSION REQUIRED

BIOL 395H may be taken for no more than six graded academic credits. Three to five credit hours of research may be counted as one lecture course toward Students who take 395H meet for an hour and a half each week (in addition to the research that they do in their own labs) and work on research-related skills. We run workshops on literature search, you will discuss and analyze primary scientific literature, you will practice in scientific writing, and the icing on the cake- you will learn how to present your own research.

You do not have to be an honors student to enroll in 395H (you do have to have a GPA of 3.00 or higher).

BIOL 409L & ARTS 409H | Merging Printmaking and Biology - must take class & lab together!

M, 11:00 am - 2:00 pm. Instructor(s): Bob Goldstein / Beth Grabowski. Enrollment = 14.

ARTS409H and BIOL409L together will bring together art majors and science majors to learn theory and practical skills in both art and science, and to make use of this learning to make artworks using a variety of printmaking techniques. Units in this course are organized according to topics in biology. As students learn specific biological concepts and practical lab skills, they will gather and generate visual information and pose questions that arise from scientific looking. This will become the source material (images, processes and ideas) for printmaking projects.

In the print studio, the course will introduce specific technical approaches within three categories of printmaking: intaglio (photogravure), relief (large-scale wood cut and/or letterpress) and stencil printing (screen-printing). Students will learn how to make printing matrices (plate, block or screen), how to print these matrices and explore the affordances of these technical skills (print strategies) as unique approaches to art-making.
Email professors Dr Goldstein (bobg@unc.edu) and Dr Grabowski (beth.grabowski@unc.edu) with your PID number, major and why you want to take this exciting class/lab combo.

BIOL 395/395H/495 will only be accepting an online-application form for undergraduate research. You will apply online, get a copy after submission, and share the copy with your research mentor and biology sponsor (when applicable).

Here is the online form:
https://forms.gle/qvdBoW26cbyfQhGA

Please note—before you apply you need to make sure that you found a lab and a faculty that will mentor you (principal instructor or PI). If that faculty member is outside the biology department you also need to find a biology faculty member that will serve as the biology faculty sponsor, interacting with you and the faculty mentor (the PI) to make sure everything works well during the semester.

BIOL 395/395H/495 will only be accepting an online-application form for undergraduate research. You will apply online, get a copy after submission, and share the copy with your research mentor and biology sponsor (when applicable).

Here is the online form:
https://forms.gle/qvdBoW26cbyfcQhGA

Please note- before you apply you need to make sure that you found a lab and a faculty that will mentor you (principal instructor or PI). If that faculty member is outside the biology department you also need to find a biology faculty member that will serve as the biology faculty sponsor, interacting with you and the faculty mentor (the PI) to make sure everything works well during the semester.

As well as reshaping people's lives around the world, the COVID-19 pandemic has provided new insights into fundamental principles of disease ecology and evolution. This class will find, read, and discuss published papers on the ecology and evolution of COVID-19 and the virus SARS-CoV-2, ranging from the virus's emergence via spillover from an animal host, to the repeated cycles or waves of infection in the human population, to the unexpectedly rapid evolution of the virus, to possible scenarios for the future of COVID-19.

BIOL 669 001 3767 ECOLOGY SEMINAR

- Level: Lecture 1 - 3
- Days: Th
- Time: 14:00 - 15:45

Grad students; are you studying for your upcoming exams? Or planning to in the future? Then this course was designed specifically for you. Each week we go over a basic ecological theory and some of the key papers that test it. The course is challenging but fun and interactive. We do a lot of exam prep with mock exams in a friendly and supportive environment. By the end, you will feel much more confident in describing and discussing theory with your peers.

Course Title: Bread from Air: The Chemistry of Fertilizers

GEN EDS: PL, QI
DESCRIPTION:
Fear of a global famine inspired chemist Fritz Haber’s research into the production of ammonia from nitrogen in the air. Following a breakthrough laboratory discovery, engineer Carl Bosch led the development of a large-scale industrial process to produce ammonia and together they changed the world. This First Year Seminar will introduce concepts of scientific inquiry and interdisciplinary collaboration in the context of the humankind’s utilization of fertilizers. Weaving together elements of plant biology, chemical synthesis and catalysis, environmental science, and technoeconomic analysis, the course will critically examine the past, present, and future of fertilizers.

Course Title: GEN DESCRIPT CHEM I

Course Description:
Three midterm exams will be given in class on the following Wednesdays at 6:30pm (Eastern Time): September 15, October 13 and November 10. Course expectations are that you will take all midterms.

Exam Make-up Requests & Alternative Exam Policy:
Course expectations are that you will be in attendance for every exam, and that you work your schedule around these exam times. However, in the case of serious illness, family emergency, religious holiday, class conflict, or varsity athletic travel there is an alternative exam time provided at 6:30 am (Eastern Time) on the Thursday morning following the scheduled exam.
You cannot show up to the alternative exam time unless you have received approval from your instructor prior to the official make-up exam date. The following provides guidelines for requesting the alternative exam time.

Use Waitlists on Connect Carolina until the registration period is complete.
- Only waitlist one section! (If you add to the waitlist for multiple sections, the registration system will see a conflict (enrolling in the same course twice) and you will not be enrolled if a seat becomes available. The person behind you on the waitlist will claim the seat.
- Check to see if other sections at the same day and time have a waitlist. Some sections have no waitlist, while others are 4 deep. If there is another section at the day and time you need, it is better to be first on the waitlist.
- Be persistent, seats do open up.

If you are not enrolled in a lab section by the first week of classes: The chemistry undergraduate lab courses use an electronic waitlist to fill any empty seats that open during the week of check-in

Class Equivalents: CHEM 102/102H

CHEM 102H.001 | Advanced General Descriptive Chemistry
TR, 2:00 pm - 3:15 pm. Instructor(s): Todd Austell. Enrollment = 35.
CHEM 102H is recommended by the Chemistry Department for incoming first year students who have taken Advanced Placement Chemistry or the equivalent and plan to major in chemistry and/or plan a career as a research scientist. CHEM 102H focuses on a more in-depth treatment of topics traditionally covered in two semesters of freshman courses. The topics covered have been identified by the Department of Chemistry faculty as essential for success in and a good foundation for more advanced study in chemistry and other areas of the basic and applied sciences. The textbook, lectures and course work require a willingness to accept rigorous academic challenges and a solid high school background in algebra, coordinate geometry, and trigonometry. Differential and integral calculus will be used only where necessary in derivations and with explanation.

STUDENTS ELIGIBLE FOR ENROLLMENT IN CHEM 102H ARE INCOMING FIRST YEAR STUDENTS WHO HAVE RECEIVED AN ADVANCED PLACEMENT SCORE OF 5 AND HAVE BEEN GRANTED

Use Waitlists on Connect Carolina until the registration period is complete.
- Only waitlist one section! (If you add to the waitlist for multiple sections, the registration system will see a conflict (enrolling in the same course twice) and you will not be enrolled if a seat becomes available. The person behind you on the waitlist will claim the seat.
- Check to see if other sections at the same day and time have a waitlist. Some sections have no waitlist, while others are 4 deep. If there is another section at the day and time you need, it is better to be first on the waitlist.
- Be persistent, seats do open up.

If you are not enrolled in a lab section by the first week of classes: The chemistry undergraduate lab courses use an electronic waitlist to fill any empty seats that open during the week of check-in.

CHEM 261H.001 | Honors Organic Chemistry I
TR, 9:30 am - 10:45 am. Instructor(s): Marcey Waters. Enrollment = 25.
Molecular structure and its determination by modern physical methods, correlation between structure and reactivity and the theoretical basis for these relationships; classification of "reaction types" exhibited by organic molecules using as examples molecules of biological importance. This course will be similar to CHEM 261 with a greater emphasis on class discussion and some use of computer modeling techniques.

PREREQUISITES: CHEM 102 OR CHEM 102H. GPA OF 3.600 OR HIGHER.
DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY CONSENT REQUIRED. EMAIL chemus@unc.edu.

Professor Waters' research interests are at the interface of organic chemistry and biochemistry. The overarching goal of her research is to design CHEM 261H.001 | Honors Organic Chemistry I

Use Waitlists on Connect Carolina until the registration period is complete.
- Only waitlist one section! (If you add to the waitlist for multiple sections, the registration system will see a conflict (enrolling in the same course twice) and you will not be enrolled if a seat becomes available. The person behind you on the waitlist will claim the seat.
- Check to see if other sections at the same day and time have a waitlist. Some sections have no waitlist, while others are 4 deep. If there is another section at the day and time you need, it is better to be first on the waitlist.
- Be persistent, seats do open up.
If you are not enrolled in a lab section by the first week of classes: The chemistry undergraduate lab courses use an electronic waitlist to fill any empty seats that open during the week of check-in

CLS 051H.001 | Greek Drama on Page & Stage
MWF, 12:20 pm - 1:10 pm. Instructor(s): Alexander Duncan. Enrollment = 24.

Taking a participatory approach to ancient Greek drama, this course pairs readings from three Athenian playwrights (Aeschylus, Euripides, and Aristophanes) with performance-oriented activities and scholarship.

At its most traditional, this course surveys the historical and cultural context of the so-called classical Athens of the fifth-century BCE, emphasizing the political, religious, and aesthetic forces that gave rise to humankind’s first recorded theater. More innovatively, this course probes the dual nature of theater, its distinct but intertwined existences as codified script and socially-embedded performance, through sustained investigations of some of its most influential texts and their modern reception in a global context with case studies focused on post-Apartheid South African and 21st-century Chicana

CLS 057H.001 | Dead and Deadly Women on the Western Stage
TR, 12:30 pm - 1:45 pm. Instructor(s): Sharon James. Enrollment = 24.

In this course, we will study the great tragic heroines of ancient Greek drama, focusing on Clytemnestra, Medea, Alcestis, Phaedra, the Trojan Women, Antigone. We will also read a contemporary novel, by Fay Weldon, that engages many of these mythic women. We will study the Greek tragedies intensively, along with their reception in later art, from paintings to poems, stage productions to sculptures, operas to ballets. Our questions will include: why does Greek tragedy focus so intensely on women? Are the playwrights misogynists or do they express some sympathy for women? What about these female characters grabbed the imaginations not only of ancient Greek playwrights but of later writers, painters, composers, not to mention readers? How are their stories relevant to the 21st century? Did the ancient Athenians know something we don’t?

CLAS 131H.001 | Classical Mythology

The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the myths of the ancient Greeks and Romans, the stories about gods, goddesses, and heroes that were told and retold over a period of centuries. The emphasis will be not simply on learning these stories, but on studying them in their historical context. How were they transmitted? What roles did they play in Greek and Roman culture? What can we learn from them about the way that the ancient Greeks and Romans understood the world around them? In our explorations we will concentrate on literary texts, especially epic and tragedy, but will also consider visual sources, especially vase painting and sculpture. As another way of exploring the significance of myth in ancient Greek and Roman society, we will also examine analogous phenomena in our own society.

I received my BA from Washington University in St. Louis in 1984 and my PhD from Stanford University in 1990. After teaching at Columbia University in New York for many years, I am now back in North Carolina.

CLAS 362H.001 | Greek Tragedy

MWF, 12:20 pm - 1:10 pm. Instructor(s): Emily Baragwanath. Enrollment = 24.
Classical Greek tragedy ¿ended¿ well over two thousand years ago but still captivates audiences today. This course will explore why that is. What are the central questions of the genre? We will read Greek tragedies ¿ some familiar (Agamemnon, Antigone), others less so (Euripides¿ Electra) ¿ and Aristophanes¿ Frogs, a no-holds-barred comedy in which a battle of wits & words is waged in the underworld between the ghosts of Aeschylus and Euripides. As well as paying close attention to the original performance context, we will examine the ways in which these tragedies tackle difficult and compelling questions about agency, responsibility, the relations between individuals and their families and societies, politics, gender, the divine, the nature of human fate, and responses to war.

DESCRIPTION:
Students in this seminar will attend and study the production process of multimedia, music, dance and theater performances on campus and on-line. The Process Series of the Performance Studies program in the Department of Communication Studies, Playmakers, Carolina Performing Arts, and others across campus and additional on-line performance. We will discuss how performance as it was experienced (pre-Covid) and as it currently experienced. We will examine performance through multiple lenses, from Aristotle’s Poetics, Peter Brooks’s Empty Space, up to current writing from Performance Studies scholars. We will explore the ways that performances engage us, communicating powerful ideas and emotions through their various media of expression. Students will research performance pieces, interview the performers, attend rehearsals and performances, and write essays that combine their own experiences of the performances with class readings. Students will also create their own performance pieces as they observe the relationship of preparation and practice to the spontaneity and surprise of performance.

In order to actualize a more fair, just, and equitable society, it is essential that we hone an awareness of the political dimensions of technological systems and work toward the design of better ones. The goal of this course is to foster such a critical technological literacy. It will cover gig economy platforms and labor relations, surveillance and policing algorithms, and the environmental impact of technological infrastructures.

Course Topic: Evolution of Storytelling in American Electronic News Media
Course taught by special guest lecturer and alumnus, James Lampley.

The course is designed as an interactive examination and discussion of the techniques, processes and phenomena by which electronic news delivery in the United States began with early radio transmissions and developed into our current infinitely broad landscape of personal and professional storytelling. Students will share in the process of reading books and articles, viewing and hearing tape artifacts, cataloguing and interpreting the dynamics of this evolution, all under the guiding stimulus of an instructor with forty five years of experience in high profile roles in network television sports, news and entertainment.

There will be reading assignments which translate into oral presentations, and two examinations in short essay form, a mid term and a final. But most

Course descriptions:
This course will provide an introduction to the history and development of "Theory" as the foundation for much of the most interesting thinking and research in the humanities and social sciences. In the contemporary intellectual universe, "theory" provides a common language of concepts and methods that enable intellectuals and scholars investigating human social and everyday life to speak to one another-- across disciplines and geographies, comparable to the way statistics and experimentation function in the more traditional models of science (including some social science work).

"Theory" includes many of the major schools of modern and contemporary philosophy (that stand in opposition to what is often referred to as "analytic philosophy," which often dominates Anglo-American philosophy departments); but it also includes other-- less traditionally "philosophical"--positions. At the same time, "theory" differs from "philosophy" in so far as it is interested in providing the foundation for more empirically oriented understandings of concrete instances of human relations, practices, etc. What philosophy and theory have in common is that they provide a set of tools--concepts, filters,
The overarching objective of COMM 702 is to introduce graduate teaching assistants to the practice and theory of teaching undergraduate students at UNC. The course will provide practical advice and tips about teaching. The beginning and middle of the course will focus on practical elements of teaching, such as people management (i.e., navigating classroom relationships, classroom climate, and disruptive students), classroom management (i.e., fostering class discussion, classroom activities, and lectures), and document management (i.e., preparing syllabus, choosing reading assignments and grading). The final few weeks of the course encourages contemplation about the theory of teaching and the role of the professoriate in academe. Course content and class discussions are designed to encourage intellectually rigorous and personally meaningful conversations about our teaching and how our personal perspectives of teaching and learning influence our practices as teachers. We will read about and discuss different approaches to teaching, the enactment of communication instruction, and growing as a teacher. You will leave this course with materials designed to help you as a new teacher, such as a course syllabus, a lesson plan, and a draft of your statement of teaching philosophy.
This seminar will examine politics, cultures, and ethics of care. We will not begin with the presumption that care is a self-evident good. We will think through care as both a mechanism of discipline, control, and coercion, as well as the foundation of many praxes of resistance to forms of oppression and dispossession. Rather, we will treat care as a problematic concerning the distribution of moral responsibility across social, cultural, political and economic boundaries. We will use the concept as a springboard into the exploration of political and ethical life and of different governing regimes of life itself. Our inquiry will consider accounts of humanitarian aid and sanctuary, carceral social reproduction, feminist praxes, care work, biopolitics, repair work, extinction and interspecies kinships, social reproduction, disability justice, decolonial aesthetics, and other topics, exploring distributions of care, its effects, and what moral/ethical logics, structuring regimes of personhood, and modes of politicization it entails. Along the way we will also consider care in relation to other core concepts such as harm, giving, value, exchange, coercion, vulnerability, hospitality, sovereignty, responsibility, dependency and interdependency. Ultimately, we will cultivate vocabularies and sensibilities around the question: how is care’s morality established in practice and how is moral responsibility assigned and distributed in different care regimes? We think throughout the class about why care has surfaced

TITLE: Lux Libertas: On the Knowledge, Manipulation and Display of Light
GEN EDS: PH, NA

DESCRIPTION:
Light has figured centrally in human explanations and manipulations of the natural world: from creation narratives, to the Copernican Revolution, to the theory of relativity, to harvesting energy from sunlight, to shaping light inside phones and screens for the capture and display of images. The goal of this course is to bring students into an intellectual encounter with light, one that will provide a history of human understandings of light, experimental encounters with light in the laboratory, and orientations to theoretical paradigms that have resulted from the human manipulation of light. At its most broad, the course aims to introduce first year students to knowledge and matter-energy as things that we study, handle, and transform.

Course is Data Specific
Underlying the many applications of computers in our daily life are discrete structures like Boolean logics, relations, finite state machines, graphs, and networks that have mathematical specifications. You can tell your parents that the primary purpose of this class is to introduce these discrete structures and the formal proof techniques that support the production, verification, and maintenance of correct software. In fact, many of these are familiar from puzzles and games: already in 1990 Super Mario World expects kids to immediately understand a finite state machine diagram. This is a language class: you will learn vocabulary and idioms of a language that is more precise and less ambiguous than the languages that we usually speak or write. With any new language, you may at first struggle to make yourself understood, but by frequent immersion and fearless practice you can become comfortable thinking and expressing yourself creatively in the language. Students pick up languages at different rates, so work to teach each other. All can gain fluency with effort and a willingness to make mistakes. And fluency will help all your computer science endeavors — precise and unambiguous

DRAM  79  001  9754  THE HEART OF THE PLAY  Lecture  3  A

Bldg: Center for Dramatic  Room: 0102  Days: MW  Time: 11:15 - 12:30  INST: 100  Instructor: PERRY, MARK E

DESCRIPTION:
The goal of this seminar is to get you doing theatre, to spark your creativity and to connect you with the deeper lessons of this dynamic art form. You will act. You will write. You will work with others. It will not always be easy, but if you are willing to stretch yourself, you should have a great time. Each lesson is organized around a principle or virtue inherent in the practice of the art. Participants study a quotation or two that relate to that principle and then engage in drama exercises that spring from that principle. By the end of the course, you will have gained skills to make you comfortable to write, stage and perform your own 10 minute plays. Not just for those interested in pursuing theatre, this seminar will give you a more holistic understanding of essential principles in the practice of your life.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURES:
In mid-June, FY students entering their second term in residence in fall 2021 will be able to enroll in FYS when their registration session opens.

DESCRIPTION:
The seminar examines our national drama from its colonial origins to the present. Participants read plays and criticism, screen videos, engage in critical writing, and consider performance as related means of exploring the visions and revisions constituting American dramatic history. We will approach American drama as both a literary and commercial art form, and look to its history to provide a context for current American theater practice. Readings are chosen for their intrinsic merit and historical importance, but also for their treatment of key issues and events in American life. Our focus throughout will be on the forces that shaped the American drama as well as, in turn, that drama's ability to shed light on the national experience.

DESCRIPTION:
This seminar will explore the artists, art and technology involved in creating the world of the play. It is intended as an overview for students who want to learn about theatrical design. Students will create their own designs in the areas of scenery, costumes, and lighting for three plays throughout the semester. The plays will be placed outside of their traditional setting while still maintaining the story and themes. Students have placed Shakespeare’s A Midsummer Night’s Dream in a trailer park and a daycare center for example. Careful historical research, close reading and analysis, text and source material, and collaboration will be the focus of the student projects.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURES:
In mid-June, FY students entering their second term in residence in fall 2021 will be able to enroll in FYS when their registration session opens. This registration window closes on July 9.

William Blake, the visionary poet, artist and printmaker of the British Romantic period, has had enormous influence on modern art and popular culture. His illuminated poetry integrated word and image anticipating graphic novels and influencing many modern musicians, poets, writers (including Pullman, His Dark Materials Trilogy, Bono, Patti Smith and Jim Morrison). Using the Blake Archive, a hypertext of Blake’s poetry and art, we will study key Blake works as well as the digital medium that enables us to study these works in new ways. We will also explore the Web for performances and adaptations of the works we study and for works by musicians, painters, poets, writers, actors, playwrights, performers, dancers and film and video makers who were or are inspired or influenced by Blake. Students will share their discoveries with the class and produce critical or creative responses to a work by Blake or by an influenced artist.

ENGL 089H.001 | American Poetry in Motion
TR, 12:30 pm - 1:45 pm. Instructor(s): Eliza Richards. Enrollment = 24.
In this course we will read recent poems that communicate intensely personal experiences in ways that allow them to be shared, understood, and appreciated by others. We will focus on the work of those who turn to poetry to create space for marginalized or suppressed perspectives. We will explore how social and cultural conditions both limit and enable poetic expression; how poets engage in social and political movements; and to think about the ways writers express themselves in their work. Readings will be chosen from books awarded the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry in the present century. The course seeks to develop close reading skills that are crucial for interpreting poetry; to strengthen writing and oral communication skills; and to develop research skills.
FIRST YEAR STUDENTS ONLY.

ENGL 089H.002 | The Machine Mistake from Frankenstein to the Smartphone
There is the assumption that science fiction propagandizes for the gleaming gadgetry that it depicts. It’s true that science fiction often endorses the scientific endeavor and worldview. It’s further true that the science fictionists of the 1940s and 1950s tended to pine for the space age that began in 1969. But even at its giddiest and wonkiest, science fiction remembers the lesson of Frankenstein. It remembers that our monsters develop ideas of their own; that they wind up haunting us and even hunting us; that our innovations—however seemingly benign; however fenced and fail-safe—threaten to escape our control and our comprehension. This course traces the genealogy of this machine anxiety. Our guiding questions will be: What are machines? Does the artificially intelligent ¿machine¿ cease to be a machine? Are machines ¿natural¿ or ¿unnatural¿? Are they heretical? Are their dangers inherent? How do they change us? Our core in-class activity will be aggressive discussion of the cultural, philosophical, political, and psychological questions that our course materials raise.

VERY IMPORTANT: HONORS STUDENTS WHO INTEND TO REGISTER FOR A FALL 2022 HONORS COURSE, SHOULD DO SO DURING WAVE 1 OR WAVE 2. WHEN OPEN ENROLLMENT BEGINS ON APRIL 25, HONORS COURSE REGISTRATION WILL BE SUSPENDED IN ORDER TO RESERVE ALL REMAINING SEATS FOR INCOMING FIRST-YEAR HONORS STUDENTS. CONTINUING STUDENTS WILL NOT REGAIN REGISTRATION ACCESS FOR HONORS COURSES UNTIL AUGUST 8. For more information, please visit https://honorscarolina.unc.edu/academics/courses/#register

ENGL 132H.001
Honors: Intro to Fiction Writing
TR, 11:00 am - 12:15 pm. Instructor(s): Bland Simpson. Enrollment = 15.
This course is a collective, collaborative exploration of the techniques of fiction, through close reading and discussion of classic short stories to the writing of short exercises dealing with the elements of fiction (setting, characterization, dialogue, point of view, etc.) and, later in the term, one short story (2,000-5,000 words). There is a midterm examination. The class is a seminar, a workshop with both written and oral critiques of student works required, and students can expect a lively and encouraging atmosphere as we investigate and practice the imaginative craft of fiction writing.

FIRST YEAR HONORS CAROLINA STUDENTS ONLY.

Very important: Honors students who intend to register for a fall 2022 honors course, should do so during wave 1 or wave 2. When open enrollment begins on April 25, honors course registration will be suspended in order to reserve all remaining seats for incoming first-year honors students. Continuing students will not regain registration access for honors courses until August 8. For more information, please visit https://honorscarolina.unc.edu/academics/courses/#register

ENGL 133H.001 | Honors: Intro to Poetry Writing
TR, 2:00 pm - 3:15 pm. Instructor(s): Tyree Daye. Enrollment = 15.
In Honors: Intro to Poetry Writing, we explore the syllabic prosody of All the Flowers Kneeling by Paul Tran to explore the poem's three parts, according to Stephen Dobyns, the meaning-making of poetry, metaphor, and the interior "I" tone, and voice. We will examine the structure of each poem in the collection by drawing the "line end and breaks" through a plotting system I designed for poetry. Students will submit daily "plotting" assignments and imitations according to standards set in class. Students are expected to have a notebook for our course materials only. Students' overall course grades will be reflected in submitting work through the course notebook.

ENGL 238H.001 | 19th-Century British Novel with a Contemporary Twist
TR, 2:00 pm - 3:15 pm. Instructor(s): Beverly Taylor. Enrollment = 24.

In this course we’ll be reading some great novels! Jane Austen (Persuasion), Charlotte Brontë (Jane Eyre), Emily Brontë (Wuthering Heights), Charles Dickens (Great Expectations), George Eliot (The Mill on the Floss), Thomas Hardy (Tess of the D¿Urbervilles). While discussing these novels with other good readers, we’ll also be learning about the historical context of the works and thinking about how fiction and art more generally expresses and also alters the culture in which it develops. We’ll be thinking about power relations in the cultural moments depicted, especially noting the organization of power relations predicated on rank and money, social class, gender, and race. Besides all this, we’ll aim to produce a tangible outcome: a collection of essays on Neo-Victorian fiction and film. The contemporary twist of the course will involve us all in considering why modern writers and film makers “write back” to Victorian works, either by writing prequels, sequels, or revisions of nineteenth-century texts, or by writing a new story but setting it in the Victorian period (for example, Alias Grace). You’ll choose a 20th- or 21st-century neo-Victorian novel or film to examine, addressing questions about why

Very Important: Honors Students who intend to register for a Fall 2022 Honors Course, should do so during Wave 1 or Wave 2. When Open Enrollment begins on April 25, Honors Course Registration will be suspended in order to reserve all remaining seats for incoming first-year honors students. Continuing students will not regain registration access for honors courses until August 8. For more information, please visit https://honorscarolina.unc.edu/academics/courses/#register

ENGL 268H.001 | Medicine, Literature, and Culture

MW, 8:00 am - 8:50 am; Recitation: F, 8:00 am - 8:50 am OR F, 9:05 am - 9:55 am. Instructor(s): Jane Thrailkill. Enrollment = 40.

This course provides an introduction to Health Humanities, an interdisciplinary field that combines methods and topics from literary studies, healthcare, and the human sciences. We'll read novels, screen films, learn about illnesses and treatments, and hear expert speakers as we investigate the importance of narrative in the time of high-tech medicine. We'll play close attention to how ideas about sickness have changed over time and across cultures. Topics will include the clinician-patient relationship, medical detection, the rise of psychiatry, racism and social determinants of health, epidemics and the outbreak narrative, and the quest for immortality.

Prerequisites: This course welcomes students from all fields, especially humanities majors and those interested in careers in healthcare and health affairs.

Spend this term in some exciting places. Plunge down the rabbit hole with Alice, get whirled to Oz with Dorothy or fly to Neverland with Peter and Wendy, go shopping on Diagon Alley with Harry and Hagrid.

In English 284 Reading Children’s Fiction read (or reread) some of the most influential and lasting books written in English. Enjoy works hailed as classics alongside works recovered for their importance and vitality: get lost in the pictures and stories of the children’s magazine, The Brownies Book, edited by W. E. B. Du Bois and a masterwork of the 1920s.

This course considers how to define children’s literature (from nursery stories through young adult).

What stories do these books tell? How do they tell them?

Some seats are reserved for incoming First-Years and Transfer students. If you're not able to enroll right now, try adding yourself to the waitlist or wait until August 2 for when seats are released for every student.

We focus on illustrated books for children that have established or transformed that genre. We locate children's books within the history of illustration to explore conventions of visual story telling. How do images reflect, extend, or dispute written meaning? How do they reveal changing ideas of children or childhood?

We compare different depictions of classic forms--fables, nursery rhymes, fairy and folk tales--as well as the roles of pictures in primers and readers. We read books transformed by their pictures--the Alice books, Oz, Treasure Island. The role of photography takes us into twentieth-century illustration. How does medium shape meaning?
